subject matter involves minor children of either sex and can be deemed to be pornographic. The U.S. Probation Office will have the right of reasonable search of your person and residence, or any other establishment within your custody or control, and will, if necessary, request the assistance of other law enforcement personnel to enforce the provisions of this special condition.

U.S. Probation Officer Action:

On September 20, 2021, the Court ordered the modification of conditions in this case to add a sex offense-specific assessment and treatment condition to determine Aja Easley's level of supervision based on her specific needs and risk to the community. On November 3, 2021, Ms. Easley was assessed through psychosexual evaluation. According to the evaluation, Ms. Easley has a low risk for re-offense due to the absence of deviant sexual arousal or sexual interest in children. It was further indicated that sex offender specific treatment is not recommended for Ms. Easley at this time. Instead, the therapist recommended mental health counseling to address her significant abuse history.

After conferring with the Court, it is recommended that the computer monitoring condition is amended to include manual searches of Ms. Easley's computer equipment to include personal computers, personal digital assistants, entertainment consoles, cellular telephones, and/or any electronic media device, which is owned or accessed by her, every 60 days to ensure no inappropriate content is being accessed by Ms. Easley. This amendment removed the use of computer monitoring software and the cost associated with use of this software to monitor her devices.

Based on the findings of the assessment, the probation officer respectfully recommends that the restricted contact with minors condition is suspended, as the condition provides a level of restriction that is greater than necessary to achieve the purposes of supervision. Allowing the condition to be suspended permits the Court and the probation officer to employ the condition if it is determined, that Ms. Easley poses a risk to any third party.

Respectfully submitted,

SUSAN M. SMALLEY, Chief
U.S. Probation Officer
